Stevenson's Baroque Ensemble and Viol Consort

Founded in 2010, Stevenson High School's Baroque Ensemble and Viol Consort are unique co-curricular ensembles focused on Historically-Informed Performance Practice (H.I.P.P.) on period instruments. Participation in these co-curricular ensembles are by audition and meetings outside of regular music classes, and are comprised of string students enrolled in Stevenson's music program. Begun by orchestra director Enrique Vilaseco, the school initially owned only a few Baroque violins, a viola, a bass viol, and a Baroque cello. The program continues to grow through overwhelming institutional support at Stevenson, which has allowed for considerable expansion of instrument collection and offerings. In 2016, Stevenson purchased its second therobo alongside a 1974 Flemish single-manual harpsichord by Lyon and Werner from the Harpsichord Clearing House in Boston, Massachusetts.

The Stevenson Baroque ensemble and viol consorts have benefited from many guest artists and collaborations during its short history. Guests have included Leighann Daihl Ragusa, Matthew Cataldi and Emily Katayama (New Comma Baroque), Garry Clarke (Baroque Band), Sarah Huebsch (Forgotten Clefs), Mirja Lorenz and Joel Spears (Black Tulip), Laura Osterlund (Ensemble Musica Humana), Mark Shuldiner (Rook), Anna Steinhoff (Wayward Sisters), Lisa Terry (Tempesta di Mare & Parthenia) as well as Rachel Barton Pine, David Schraeder, and John Mark Rozendaal (Trio Settecento), with Ms. Pine joining the ensemble for special concerto performances on viola d'amore and violin in May 2015 and at the ASTA convention in 2019.
